Get an Education.

"The helping hand" which Kendal college extends to the boy atheist for education and forced to pay for it by the sweat of his own brow finds admiral exercise in the fact that Robertson hall, the men's dormitory, is being kept open this summer, and its rooms rented at a low rate, for those young men who are working in the city through the summer season to earn money to send them to the college during the coming winter.

Though the men's dormitories in all colleges and universities which do not have short terms are closed for the summer period, Robertson hall was kept open for the express purpose of furnishing these young men inexpensive, comfortable, and properly conducted lodging places. At present 11 young men stay there with Dr. Franklin G. Bill, dean of the college, in charge.

The collegians leave the "dorm" early in the morning; take the Kendall street car to town, and return in the evening after their day's work, to prepare for an evening engagement, racket and merry times on the piano in the living-room, play tennis on the college courts, and "reminisce" on the cool porch. No meals are served and each must keep his own room in order, with the aid afforded by a general cleaning once a week by a woman.

All the young men are from out of town and, in several instances, from outside the state, except one, whose home is on a farm near Tulsa. The roll call of gainful occupations in which they are engaged for the summer is varied. Three are employed at the postoffice, one in a shoe store, another by an oil company, one at a bank, still another at the Y. M. C. A., one by a decorating firm, one at a clothing store, and two are in the real estate business. Their classifications in college are equally varied, every year from the senior academy to senior college being represented.

A number of Kendall "co-eds" are working in the city this summer from similar necessity, and with the same goals. Four young women are "at home" in the home of one of the professors for the summer.

Though it's not generally known, a handful of college girls and boys are the year around a part of the thousands of workers with brain and brawn who constitute Tulsa's hive of labor. Work which is done at the college during the winter is janitor work in the college buildings, waiting at tables in the dining hall at Robertson hall, "K. P." tutor, stenographic work for the college, and keeping charge of the library. A number of young men arrange their classes so as to leave the afternoons free for employment downtown, and others have night work. At least one girl in the girls' dormitory was so courageous as to earn pin money by "darning" and sewing for other residents of Kendall.

Kendall college wishes to do all within its power to help those students who must make their own way through college." Dr. J. M. Gordon, president, said recently. It has been my experience that these students are dependable and ambitious in both school and work."

Claims Gas Not Paid For.
Alleging the Higgrade Petroleum and Gasoline company has failed to pay for gas taken from wells in lot 73 and the east half of lot 74, Osage nation, since July 31, 1915, suit was brought in the circuit court yesterday by the Buhl Oil company. The latter company claims it sold all gas from the wells to the defendant company under a contract made November 9, 1916, to run for six years.

EDUCATORS WILL MEET
Superintendents and Teachers Hold Conference at Stillwater Next Month.

A state-wide meeting of county superintendents and vocational educational teachers will be held at A. & M. college, Stillwater, August 21 and 22, in connection with the annual farm congress, according to notification received by Mrs. Minnette Hedges, county superintendent of schools.

A program dealing with technical education in the rural communities has been planned for the conference and Mrs. Hedges suggests the attendance of those teachers who find it convenient and possible. Speakers and their subjects are to follow: Prof. C. W. Briles, "Value of Consolidated Schools, Educationally"; Agriculture and Soil; Hopkins, "How Can the County Agent in Club Work?" Our Educational System;" J. W. Bridges, "Progress of Smith Hughes Schools in Oklahoma;" James A. Wilson, "Does the Present Day Rural School Meet the Needs of the Farm Boy and Girl?" O. W. Bass, "The Teacher as a Factor in Rural Community Life;" R. A. Pratt, "How Can the County Superintendent Use the A. & M. College?"

On the second day the program will be: J. W. Cantwell, "Right Education of A. & M. College to the Benefit of the State;" A. E. Duval, "Value of Consolidated Schools, Educationally; Agriculture and Soil;" Hopkins, "How Can the County Agent in Club Work?" Our Educational System;" J. W. Bridges, "Progress of Smith Hughes Schools in Oklahoma;" James A. Wilson, "Does the Present Day Rural School Meet the Needs of the Farm Boy and Girl?" O. W. Bass, "The Teacher as a Factor in Rural Community Life;" R. A. Pratt, "How Can the County Superintendent Use the A. & M. College?"
